The Happiness + Wellbeing @ Work conference is facilitated by some of Australia's leading experts on psychology, leadership and Human Resources. The conference, now in it's fifth year, presents the latest research and strategies on workplace health and wellbeing programs.

This year the first half of the day will be presented by the wellbeing experts from the ABC show "Making Australia Happy". Attendees will have the opportunity to hear the lessons learnt from the TV show and how these lessons can be applied to Australian workers and workplaces.

To read more and to register go to www.happyworkplaces.com.au

Who attends?

The conference attracts around 100-150 HR Managers, OHS, Wellbeing Managers each year from both the private and public sector. This is

Advocacy in the IR Tribunals - Training Course

The course is designed for aspiring industrial advocates, mainly industrial practitioners, coming from the public and private sector, unions, employer associations and law firms. In general the participants have little advocacy experience and the aim of the course is to give them as many practical skills as possible and an introduction to the different tribunals and courts they may appear in.

Wednesdays 29 June - 31 August, 5.30 - 7.30pm
