It is my pleasure on behalf of the members of the Board of Studies in Social Work to welcome all of you beginning a program of studies in the Department of Social Work and Social Policy. I would also like to welcome back those of you already in various stages along the way to a degree. Your department, like your University, was the first of its kind in Australia. Many developments have taken place over the years in the Social Work program. These developments have occurred in order to ensure that the program continues to be committed to academic excellence and continues to be responsive to changing social needs and professional roles.

The undergraduate Social Work course requirements allow a wide choice of subjects in the first two years at the University. These form the basis for the more specific professional training that follows in the next two years. The Faculty of Arts Handbook provides details of Arts courses and you should consult it as well as this handbook in planning your coursework. Your choice of courses in the first two years helps determine the kind of professional social work expertise you develop. Please feel free to discuss your choice of courses and your career prospects with the Head of the Department of Social Work and Social Policy, or with Ms Janice Whittington who is Secretary to the Board of Studies in Social Work.

Chapter 6 of this handbook presents the formal avenues for consultation between students and the university staff, but I am sure you will find us all happy to participate in informal conversations. A great additional resource for you is the Sydney University Social Work Students’ Association. I hope you will in turn actively participate in its work. May I wish you all success and satisfaction in your studies and in your future careers.

'As at October 1995.
The department’s primary function is to offer a professional education to men and women who wish to become social workers. The qualification offered is a requirement for employment in this field. The course involves the study of social policy, social administration, community studies and the social sciences generally. The department is also responsible for teaching sociology courses in the Faculty of Arts.

Social work

In contemporary Australia, social work is a crucial activity. For example, some of the worst consequences of events such as the economic recession can be alleviated by Federal, State and local initiatives in social policy over which social workers exercise influence, in particular in projects often described as ‘community development’. In addition, there are many areas of national life where politically initiated reforms, whether in the administration of justice or the provision of child care or in attempts to increase employment opportunities for disabled people, have to be carried out by staff who have some expertise in managing the human and other resources of organisations and who know how to make effective use of other professionals and volunteers. The promotion and administration of changes in key areas of health and welfare are also tasks for social workers.

A more traditional job of social workers is to provide those statutory services that aim at meeting basic human needs, whether for income maintenance, shelter, personal support, information, guidance and counselling, and to carry out those statutory functions, such as supervision and control which may involve involuntary clients. These services for individuals and families involve casework but they also require social workers to know about agencies’ resources and to be effective in planning, organisation, and administration.

The importance of social work in providing services for individuals lies in the location of social workers between powerful institutions on the one hand and the predicament and powerlessness of ordinary people on the other. This requires that social workers and social policy planners have extensive knowledge of the social, political and economic contexts of welfare practice.

The fields

Social work can be roughly classified into fields indicating the groups of social agencies that serve each area, as follows:

- Physical health: general hospitals, government departments of health, rehabilitation centres, special agencies for the physically handicapped.
- Mental health: psychiatric hospitals, child guidance clinics, community health centres.
- Corrections: probation and parole services.
- Public welfare: the major government departments charged with the individual’s economic and social security.
- Family and child welfare: various government and voluntary services that care for the needs of the families and children both in and out of their own homes.
- Community work: the process of enabling local people, including participants in specific projects, to develop their own resources and initiatives in improving services and to increase their power over various forms of decision making.

This is only a selection covering the chief areas of social work services.

Professional education

While social work has come to be regarded as a profession only during the last sixty years, appropriate training at the tertiary level is now widely accepted and demanded. This demand has accompanied developments in the biological, psychological and social sciences and the increasing complexity of industrial society. The emergence of ‘social work’ has, in fact, been universally associated with the growth of industrial society.

In Australia in the last fifty years developments in the field of social work have been rapid. These have included the provision of undergraduate social work education in university departments of social work, among which Sydney’s is the oldest. Courses given take a variety of forms but in no case can a recognised undergraduate qualification be obtained in less than four years, dating from the beginning of this period.

Details of the admission procedures are in Chapter 4 of this handbook.

Employment and training

In carrying out these activities, whether in community development, in social policy initiatives including research or in the direct provision of services, social workers are employed by a range of government and non-government organisations. In New South Wales, their major employers are hospitals and the Department of Health, the Department of Social Security, the Department of Community Services and the Department of Corrective Services, the last being responsible for probation and parole supervision. In the non-government or voluntary sector there are employment opportunities in women’s and youth refuges, and in residential child care, with housing associations and a variety of self-help organisations concerned to develop services for particular minority and other disadvantaged groups.
In some of those organisations there are career ladders, in others the duration of the social worker's job is limited to the completion of particular projects. In all of these posts the direction of social work depends partly on the values and beliefs of the practitioners and on their skills in making effective alliances with people who share their objectives. In all of these activities the competence of social workers depends on their knowledge of policies and agencies’ resources, their skills in research and administration and on their ability to communicate effectively, orally and in various forms of writing from letters to memoranda, and from social enquiry reports to the completion of research-type papers. The demanding standards expected of social workers and the complex nature of their activities underline the need and importance of professional training.

A professional qualification in social work opens up opportunities for experience outside Australia. In the first place, Australians find interesting employment in most English-speaking countries, and secondly, provided they hold a degree, they may proceed to a higher qualification or take shorter specialised courses offered by schools of social work, particularly in the United States and Britain.
Chairperson: Associate Professor T.H. Irving

The degree of Bachelor of Social Work (BSW) is a qualification to practise as a social worker in Australia and it is widely accepted overseas. It may be taken as a single degree or as part of a combined course leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Social Work (BA/BSW).

Entry to the BSW degree course is at first year or, for qualified applicants, at second or third year level, and entry to the combined course for the BA/BSW degrees is at first year level only.

The BSW degree and the combined course for the BA/BSW degrees are governed by resolutions of the Senate. These resolutions are published in the Statutes and Regulations 1994-95 and are reproduced in the Appendix to this handbook.

It is possible to undertake the social work degree program by studying less than the full component of courses in each year. Some of the subjects taught in the Faculty of Arts may be available in the evening. None of the subjects taught in the Department of Social Work and Social Policy, including Sociology I and II, are available at night. There are time limits to the completion of the program.

In the BSW degree, the field education program is structured four days per week in the second semester of third year and two days per week in the first semester of the fourth year, and a nine day fortnight in the second semester of the fourth year. There are formal requirements governing the order in which the various subjects may be attempted. Students who wish to complete the program in more than the minimum time must ensure that their course plans meet all these requirements.

Length of candidature: in both the BSW and BA/BSW program the maximum length of candidature is twice the minimum period required at point of entry.

Structure of the BSW degree
The degree program involves four years' full-time study. A full-time candidate for this degree would normally proceed as outlined below:

First Year
First year courses totalling 36 units prescribed for the degree of Bachelor of Arts and taken in accordance with the resolutions for that degree. Credit may be given for courses taken at other institutions.

Second Year
(a) Psychology for Social Work (or Psychology II if qualified)
(b) Second year courses totalling 16 units prescribed for the degree of Bachelor of Arts and taken in accordance with the resolutions for that degree
(c) Sociology II or Sociology IIIB.

Credit may be given for courses taken at other institutions.

Third Year
(a) Social Justice (1)
(b) Research Through Practice (1)
(c) Social Policy and Administration
(d) Social Work Theory and Practice I(1)
(e) Field Education I(2) which includes field education of not less than 60 days.

Fourth Year
(a) Social Policy and Provision
(b) Interdisciplinary Studies (1)
(c) Social Work Theory and Practice II
(d) Social Work Practice — Field Education IIA which includes field education of not less than 40 days
(e) Social Work Practice — Field Education IIB which includes field education of not less than 60 days.

Honours
Honours are awarded on the basis of achievement in the third and fourth years.

Structure of the combined course for the BA/BSW degrees
Candidates first complete the requirements for the award of the BA degree in accordance with the resolutions for that degree. Within their BA program they include Sociology I, Sociology II and Social Policy and Administration.

Having completed the BA, they then proceed to the third and fourth years of the BSW degree. Instead of taking Social Policy and Administration in the third year (BSW degree), however, they take an alternative course or courses. If they have not previously passed Psychology II or its equivalent, they take Psychology for Social Work as the alternative. If they have already passed Psychology II or its equivalent, the alternative comprises 16 units of Arts courses taken in accordance with the resolutions for the BA degree.

A possible plan of courses for the combined degrees is as follows:

First Year
First year Arts courses totalling 48 units which include Sociology I.

Second Year
(a) Sociology II
(b) Second year Arts courses totalling 32 units taken in accordance with the resolutions for the BA degree.

Third Year
(a) Social Policy and Administration
(b) Third year courses totalling 16 units taken accordance with the resolutions for the BA degree.

Fourth Year
(a) Psychology for Social Work
(b) Social Justice (1)
(c) Research Through Practice (1)
(d) Social Work Theory and Practice I(1)
(e) Field Education I(2) which includes field education of not less than 60 days.

Fifth Year
(a) Social Policy and Provision
(b) Interdisciplinary Studies (1)
(c) Social Work Theory and Practice II
(d) Social Work Practice — Field Education IIA which includes field education of not less than 40 days
(e) Social Work Practice — Field Education IIB which includes field education of not less than 60 days.

Honours
It is possible to complete an honours BA degree and / or an honours BSW degree within the combined course program. For the BA honours degree an additional honours year is completed after the third year of the combined course program, before enrolling in the fourth year (which is the equivalent of the third year in the BSW degree course). If you are proceeding full-time, you would normally complete an honours BA degree and a BSW degree (pass or honours) in six years of enrolment. For information about the honours BA degree, consult the Faculty of Arts Undergraduate Handbook. You should also discuss your plan of courses with the Secretary to the Board of Studies.

Admission
There are three methods of admission to the BSW degree:
• HSC admission
• Undergraduate or graduate admission
• Special admission

HSC admission — BSW or BA/BSW degree program
This method is for people who:
(a) are completing the HSC or its equivalent; or
(b) have completed the HSC in the past, but have not completed any tertiary study.
Successful applicants enter the first year of the degree program.

Application and selection
1. Applicants are selected on the basis of their Tertiary Entrance Score.
2. Lodge an 'Application for Enrolment' form with the Universities Admission Centre by the specified date in the year preceding that in which you are seeking entry. Application forms are available in August from the Student Centre and from the Universities Admission Centre, Locked Bag 500, Post Office Lidcombe, N.S.W. 2141; telephone (02) 330 7200.

Undergraduate or graduate admission — BSW degree program
This method is for people who:
(a) have an HSC (or equivalent); and
(b) are currently undertaking a full-year degree/diploma course at Sydney or another tertiary institution; or
(c) have completed at least one year or more of a degree/diploma; or
(d) have been awarded an associate diploma.

Application and selection
To apply and be selected for enrolment in the BSW degree course, you must:
(a) have met the University’s minimum eligibility requirements;
(b) have completed one year of university or equivalent tertiary studies;
(c) lodge an 'Application for Enrolment' form with the Universities Admissions Centre by the specified date in the year preceding that in which you are seeking entry; application forms are available in August from the Student Centre and from the Universities Admissions Centre, Locked Bag 500, Post Office Lidcombe, N.S.W. 2141; telephone (02) 330 7200;
(d) lodge a Social Work application with the Secretary of the Board of Studies in Social Work by the specified date in the year preceding that in which you are seeking entry.

Selection into the course is based on both academic and non-academic merit to the extent that places are available. You are required to include in your application the names of two referees who can comment on your suitability for social work.

The Department of Social Work and Social Policy welcomes applications from graduates and from students who have social work related experience, who have shown academic merit in tertiary education.

If you seek credit for courses which were not completed at the University of Sydney, you should also submit to the Secretary of the Board of Studies in Social Work at the time of making application through UAC, a copy of the certified statement of your academic record from the other tertiary institution and relevant handbook extracts describing the course(s) for which you seek credit. These extracts should be photocopies from the handbook for the year in which you completed the course(s).

Credit may be granted, where appropriate, for up to the equivalent of twelve single semester courses (i.e. for admission to the second or third years) towards the BSW degree (see section 3 of the Senate resolutions in the Appendix of this handbook).

Special Admission
Mature age applicants:
(a) are 21 years of age or over on 1 March of the year of entry or are from an educationally disadvantaged background; and must produce evidence which satisfies the University's Special Admissions Committee that they have the ability to undertake the Bachelor of Social Work course.

Most Special Admissions applicants have successfully completed postsecondary studies at a technical college or 'Special Admission' university preparation course. If you think you may be eligible, contact the Special Admissions Adviser (telephone (02) 351 3615).

Applicants who succeed in gaining a place through Special Admissions usually commence in the first year of the degree program. In cases where a successful applicant has already completed work towards another degree, however, this can be credited towards the Bachelor of Social Work degree.

Broadway Scheme
Year 12 students who are currently sitting the N.S.W. HSC and who have experienced serious educational disadvantage should check their eligibility for consideration under this scheme with their school (or equivalent). For more information please contact the University Admissions Office, telephone (02) 3513615.

Disabilities
If you have a medical or physical disability of a kind likely to impair your working program you should place this on record, accompanied where appropriate by medical evidence. Allowance may be made to accommodate your needs in the lecture room and at examination time.

Further information
For full details of the arts courses see the Faculty of Arts Undergraduate Handbook. The Board of Studies in Social Work offers, at both pass and honours levels, a degree program leading to a Bachelor of Social Work. The structure of the program is presented in Chapter 4. Provision is made for candidates for any degree of the University or persons with equivalent qualifications who have completed approved courses to be admitted to the second or third year of the Bachelor of Social Work degree.

During the third and fourth years a candidate completes twelve social work courses including three placements in social work agencies.

The scholarship is to support research in some areas to which Dr Marchant was particularly devoted, such as: social work and social change, gender and social welfare, women, work and technology, immigration, social welfare and social work.

Applications for the scholarship are to be submitted by 1 September of each year in which awards are offered.

Applications for the scholarship must include statements about the purpose for which support is sought; an outline of the research as a whole; detailed budget, including details of current or proposed sources of funding; the intended outcome of the research.

Katharine Ogilvie Memorial Award

The award was established in 1988 following donations received from a group of retired social workers to honour pioneer social worker Katharine Ogilvie, and to support postgraduate research in social work.

The award is open to enrolled postgraduate research students within the Department of Social Work and Social Policy who are eligible for membership of the Australian Association of Social Workers.

The committee making the award takes into account the academic merit of each applicant and the appropriateness and quality of the research project.

The level of an award is determined by the committee, taking into account the availability of the funds and the level of financial support necessary for conclusion of the project.

Financial help

Information about financial assistance is available from the department. The booklet Ways to Finance Your Studies lists all the University's loans and bursaries and is available from the Financial Assistance Office. The Financial Assistance Office is open Monday to Thursday from 9.30 am to 2.30 pm.

The N.S.W. Branch of the Australian Association of Social Workers has at its disposal the Elvira M. Lyons Students' Loan Fund. Applications for assistance should be made to the head of the department.

The prize is awarded annually on the recommendation of the Head of the Department of Social Work and Social Policy to the most proficient student in the subject Social Work Theory and Practice I, providing that the student's performance is of sufficient merit. Australian Association of Social Workers

The Australian Association of Social Workers is the social workers' professional organisation in Australia. Membership is determined on the basis of qualifications received from the universities and other tertiary institutions in Australia that offer social work courses. Associate membership is offered to students of social work.

The AASW is now a registered company (in the A.C.T.) called 'AASW Ltd.' The Federal Council is the governing body of the AASW and meets biennially at the National Conference. It consists of the federal office bearers plus branch delegates. Delegates are elected for every 100 branch members, provided each branch has a minimum of two delegates.

The Association publishes a quarterly journal, Australian Social Work, which all members receive. It holds the National Conference of Social Work every two years in a different state capital city, the proceedings of which are published. Professional indemnity insurance covers all members. The Federal Office also provides a code of ethics. It reviews state, national and international standards of social work education, training and practice. It provides opportunities of national and international networking.
There are national standing committees which address issues affecting social work practice such as registration, social policy and international relations. The N.S.W. Branch is administered by a Committee of Management elected annually at the AGM. There is close liaison with the unions, Public Service Association and Public Officers Association which concern social workers in state, commonwealth and voluntary agencies. It publishes a newsletter bi-monthly, and runs seminars, one-day conferences and workshops, both in the metropolitan and country areas.

Master of Social Work

The degree of Master of Social Work is available within the Board of Studies in Social Work. It may be pursued in one of the two following patterns of study:

(a) Research and thesis
(b) Coursework

Both patterns allow students to reflect and formulate their practice; to read about and appraise alternative practices and theories; to diagnose their work problems and clients' needs in new ways; to be able to evaluate existing practice and provision critically, all with a view to promoting change and improvement in services offered and outcomes effected.

Pattern (a) requires the completion of two core courses and a substantial thesis of up to 30,000 words, or two core courses, one option course and a 20,000 word thesis.

Pattern (b) requires the completion of two core courses and four options selected from a range offered by the department.

Admission

Graduates who hold a BSW degree with first or second class honours or its equivalent are eligible to apply for entry to the MSW (research). Applicants for admission to the MSW (coursework) degree should hold a four-year (or equivalent) Bachelor's degree in Social Work. Graduates who do not hold an honours degree or its equivalent may be admitted to probationary candidature. All applicants are required to have completed the equivalent of one year full-time social work practice since graduation, or its part-time equivalent.

All candidates will complete two half-year core courses, although honours graduates may be exempted from one or both of these if the Board of Studies is satisfied that they have completed equivalent work.

Time limits

Full-time candidates are required to complete the requirements of the degree within six semesters and part-time candidates within twelve semesters.

Candidates are required to enrol for and complete at least one piece of coursework or for research and thesis in each semester of their candidature.

Supervision

Each student proceeding by research and thesis will have a departmental supervisor. In addition, an associate supervisor outside the department may also be appointed on the recommendation of the head of department.

Assessment

Seminar courses. Assessment may take a variety of forms such as seminars, papers, video films, use of diaries, essays.

Attendance at and participation in seminar courses is essential for their satisfactory completion.

Thesis. In accordance with section 4 of the resolutions of the Senate governing the MSW degree the Board shall appoint at least two examiners for the thesis, of whom at least one may be an external examiner.

Courses of study

There are two core courses:
- Ideologies in Social Work
- Social Work Research

Both courses consist of 15 weekly two-hour seminars, usually held on one afternoon during the week. Assessment for both is based on assignments produced by a student on a general topic requiring independent searching of relevant literature, and on his or her attendance and participation.

Ideologies in Social Work

The course covers critical analyses of the major theories of the welfare state and welfare practice and relates these perspectives to the ideological positions which inform them. Competing theoretical perspectives are linked to the political, economic and social conditions in which they were formulated. Theories of welfare are related to specific welfare policies and practices (e.g. juvenile justice, labour market programs and policies, child welfare, disability, multiculturalism, health policies, the tax/benefit system) and to the research interests of the students.

Social Work Research

This course will examine various approaches to social research and will include such topics as: nature of theory and problem definition; evaluation and action research; critical perspectives on research techniques such as surveys, interviews and career studies; data handling, computer and statistical techniques.

The course will be taught on a workshop basis.

Options

Each year the department makes available some options which, as far as possible, reflect students' interests. These options are the equivalent of 14 two-hour seminars. Sometimes a student may pursue an option individually under the guidance of a relevant staff member.

Doctor of Philosophy

Opportunities are available to obtain a PhD degree in the field of social work and social welfare.

The degree of Doctor of Philosophy is a research degree awarded for a thesis considered to be a substantially original contribution to the subject concerned.

Applicants should normally hold a master's degree or a bachelor’s degree with first or second class honours of the University of Sydney, or an equivalent qualification from another university or institution.

The degree may be taken on either a full-time or part-time basis.

In the case of full-time candidates, the minimum period of candidature is two years for candidates holding a master's degree or equivalent, or three years in the case of candidates holding a bachelor’s degree with first class or second class honours; the maximum period of candidature is normally five years.

Part-time candidature may be approved for applicants who can demonstrate that they are engaged in an occupation or other activity which leaves them substantially free to pursue their candidature for the degree. Normally the minimum period of candidature will be determined on the recommendation of the faculty but in any case will not be less than three years; the maximum period of candidature is normally seven years.

The Faculty of Arts is responsible for the supervision of this degree. Those interested should consult Assoc. Prof. Davis on 351 2650 for further information.

Master of Arts/Master of Philosophy

The MA and MPhil degrees in Social Studies are available within the Faculty of Arts. They are similar in content and structure to the Master of Social Work and are offered to candidates with a major in the social sciences who have a strong interest in social welfare issues. For further details, contact Mr Davis on 351 2650.

6. Procedures for the implementation of Senate Resolution 6A

Preamble
The Department of Social Work and Social Policy has a duty to the social work profession and to prospective clients and employers to make reasonable efforts to ensure that its graduates are not only academically prepared, but are also emotionally and ethically prepared for the demands of professional practice. Therefore, students who exhibit signs of inappropriate behaviour that may be serious enough to jeopardise their educational program and/or cause serious questions of professional aptitude or who engage in unethical behaviour, including behaviour proscribed by the Australian Association of Social Workers' Code of Ethics will be evaluated to determine if they should continue in their program of study, and, if so, what additional steps should be taken to ensure that they are prepared for professional practice.

The formal authority for this procedure is contained in Senate Resolution 6A which is as follows:

The Board of Studies, acting on the advice of the Head of Department of Social Work and Social Policy, may, in special circumstances, authorise the Department not to place a candidate in a field education assignment or refuse permission for a candidate to undertake or continue field education.

Resolutions
1. These procedures shall be implemented when a student:
   (i) while undertaking a field education placement, is excluded by either the University or agency staff from that placement, which exclusion is, as soon as possible thereafter, the subject of written report;
(ii) while undertaking a field education placement, is the subject of an adverse report in writing from either University or agency staff. This report refers not to unsatisfactory progress resulting in a failure in the placement, but rather to specific incidents or behaviour which, in the opinion of the reporting staff, cast doubt on the student’s capacity to perform appropriately as a beginning practitioner in social work. Such a report may be in addition to a failure in the placement; or

(iii) is considered by University staff in a written report to be unsuitable to undertake field education.

2. The student who is subject to the exclusion or reports set out in paragraph 1 may elect to have the

The Head of Department or the sub-committee shall arrange for the presence of a person to keep a record of the meeting. The record of the meeting and the decision taken shall be communicated to the student in writing.

5. The Head of Department or the sub-committee may:

(i) allow the student to continue in field education;
(ii) warn the student that the continuation of the behaviour could result in exclusion from further field education placements and allow the student to continue in field education;
(iii) recommend to the Chair of the Board of Studies that the student not be placed or continued in field education until specified conditions have been met; or
(iv) recommend to the Chair of the Board of Studies that the student not be placed or continued in field education.

7. In the event of a further exclusion or adverse report, the Head of Department or the sub-committee may take note of the decisions taken in relation to the previous occasion.

8. A decision under paragraph 5(iii) constitutes a failure in the field education placement concerned.
