About the authors

Geoff Frost

Geoff Frost is an associate professor in the Discipline of Accounting, the University of Sydney Business School. He has researched and co-authored many scholarly articles on reporting and accounting of sustainability activities, the accountant's role in the environmental management system, and the use of alternative reporting mediums by reporting entities.

Stewart Jones

Stewart Jones is a professor of accounting at the University of Sydney, specialising in corporate financial reporting. Over the past decade he has published over 100 scholarly works in financial reporting and accounting, including nearly 60 refereed articles, ten books, and numerous book chapters, working papers and short monographs.

Stewart's research interests include sustainability reporting, credit risk and corporate distress analysis, accounting theory, standard setting, international standards harmonisation, financial analysis and research methodology. Stewart is currently Editor-in-Chief of the prestigious international quarterly Abacus. Stewart's industry experience includes the interpretation of accounting standards, financial analysis and regulation, credit risk modelling and corporate performance analysis.

Philip Lee

Philip Lee is professor of finance and accounting at the SP Jain School of Global Management in Sydney, Australia. Prior to this appointment, he worked as an associate professor of accounting at the University of Sydney. Philip now has more than 20 years' experience in providing management education.

Philip's interest in financial markets and financial reporting encompass sustainability reporting. Forming Sustainability Australia with his co-authors, he has embarked on benchmarking some of the best practices in sustainability reporting in Australia. Philip has also co-authored many scholarly articles within the field of financial reporting, as well as a leading textbook for financial statement analysis.
