GARDEN MUSEUM

NATURE
HISTORY

Fred Jixiao Fang
309259541

Location Plan 1:10000

Plan 1:200

Location Plan 1:1000

Site Plan 1:400

Location Plan 1:10000

Plan 1:200

Axonometric 1:200

Section 1:200

Elevation 1:200

Ilkhan, a city outside a desert,
as seen of nature and history.

This building is a museum of archaeology to capture the essence of Isfahan’s rich history and the gardens on top reveal the natural branches of the city. It provides a sense of escape from the heat and serves as a place of natural and historical mutation. The building serves to preserve the recently discovered historical site revealing facts about the ancient city which were unknown before.

The concrete base floor provides excellent shelter in summer from the heat and the sunlight reflected into the building through the glass on the heritage of the four on the top garden gives the traveler a sense of peacefulness and serenity.

What lies beneath the earth only reminded us to look ahead. Embrace the past and the natural, and you are ready for tomorrow.