About

Facoltà di architettura venezia, College of Architecture, Venice is an architectural design college which produces architectural designers. The college has a single campus in Venice, which provides a single studio room where students will participate in most of their private and tutorial studies. A computer room which provides printing and scanning capabilities. One lecture room, interior halls, 3 courtyards, and an exhibition room which displays the work of students.

The college provides a single innovative and specialized design course which allows students to design and build concepts considering functionality, and economic construction. Students will explore the artistic state of architecture through sculpting & model making. Students will learn to use all necessary CAD programs and will experience the architectural work field.
