Tokyo Buddhism Temple
FengLin Wang 309029163

The Tokyo Buddhism Temple is designed based on the concept of combination of traditional function with contemporary style. It creates a different space for people to think about life and time. It is composed of Japanese Buddhism organisations included public place for religious activities and living area for monks.

Gardens are important element in this design. They connect different components together and create the public and private open space for different occupants.